TWO DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

CAPT. HENRY BERTRAM PELLEY. MRS. HENRY BERTRAM PELLEY.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] distinguished visitors to this country
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—Two recently were Captain Henry Bertram

Pelly, R. N., M. V. O., and his charming wife. They were the guests of Colonel Robert Means Thompson, of New York, on his private car, and he has taken them on quite an extended trip through the East in the same party as the Admiral and Baroness Urie.

Mrs. Pelly is the eldest daughter of Sir William Vincent, the twelfth baronet of the name and title, which title was created during the time of James I. and that family has been for centuries one of the most prominent in the history of Surrey. Captain and Mrs. Pelly were married in London in 1901, and have two children—Esther, a daughter of three years, and Douglas, of one year, for whom Lord Charles Bessford stood sponsor.

The captain comes of a family that for the last hundred years has been very much identified with the navy. Captain Pelly's father was Captain Richard Pelly, and his mother was a granddaughter of Elizabeth Fry.

Captain Pelly is an example of how young men are adequately prepared for service in the English navy. He is only forty-one years of age. This is the first time in that period he has been able to take leave to travel.

He is an illustration of the policy of the English government in the giving of commands to young and virile officers so that if they show the necessary fitness and capacity they may reach a command during the best years of their lives. It is conceded that command rank should be reached before the man is old enough to retire. And in the English navy a man who has not reached the rank of captain at fifty must retire.

Captain Pelly entered the service in 1881, when he was but thirteen years of age, and in due time became a sub-lieutenant. In 1891 he was promoted to the grade of lieutenant, and in 1893 was made commander. From 1898 to 1901 Captain Pelly was lieutenant on the yacht of Queen Victoria, the Victoria and Albert, and it was while on duty on this yacht, on the day of the death of the Queen, that the death of the Queen occurred. It was the wish of the Queen that when the end came that her body should be guarded and borne by the sailors who so dearly loved King Edward conferred upon him the Victorian Order.

A QUEER FIRE ALARM

A QUEER FIRE ALARM.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]—The town of Cape Charles, Va., June 12.—The town council has adopted a very unique fire alarm for this town. The alarm, which is made of a steel tire from a locomotive, is placed between two posts about thirty feet high and suspended from a chisel point, with a large iron hammer worked by a wire rope used as a gun. It has been placed in the central part of the town. It was the original idea of C. A. McKenny, chief of the volunteer fire department, and in carrying out his plan with a purpose of putting in an alarm with a sound different from the many bells of the tugs and steamers which frequent the harbor, which has caused much annoyance to the fire fighters, who, upon hearing the bells of the tugs and steamers at night, become confused with their sound and often run from their homes expecting to find the town in danger of fire.
